2022 SUMMER INTERNSHIP

The 2022 summer internship programme received an overwhelming response with over 400 applicants. Our cohort of 25 interns began work in May, spanning projects revolving around minority representation, social media, urban local bodies, mapping electoral boundaries and more.

WELCOME!

We welcome Shivam Gangwani, who joined the team as Junior Research Fellow. With an academic background in Economics, Shivam's interests revolve around digital humanities and computational social sciences. His key area of interest lies in how information moves across different communities, how individuals parse through this sea of information to form and update their beliefs, and how this shapes political discourse at large.

TCPD AND BEYOND

Our past interns speak about their professional and academic plans going ahead

PRERNA VIJ

I am heading to the University of Chicago for their Committee on International Relations program (MA in IR).

SHREYASHREE NAYAK

I'll be going to Hertie School of Governance in Berlin, Germany to pursue a Master's in Public Policy this fall. Thank you so much for all your help!

PRIAVI JOSHI

My learning experience at TCPD was key to all my applications! I will be working as an Associate at IDInsight starting the 4th of July. I also received acceptance offers for MA Political Science at SciencesPo and MSc Comparative Politics at LSE.

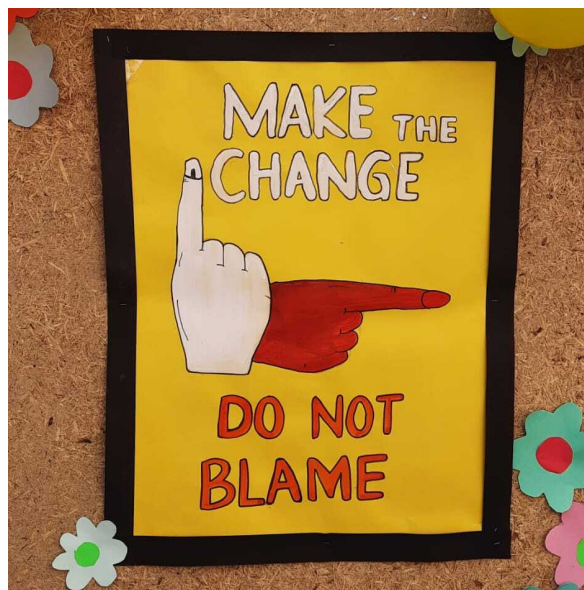

JUBAKSHI CHAKRAVORTY

I plan on pursuing an MA in Gender, Representation and Society in University College London in the coming fall. I have been inclined towards pursuing gender as a subject of study, and my time at TCPD was very helpful towards that end.
